Tame Hen or Wild Duck No Fooling on This Loan The Eggs Stay Scrambled Buy and Hurry

By Arthur Brisbane

Some prosperous men seem not to realize the meaning of the Victory Loan. That loan and the speed with which it is oversubscribed will test popular approval of our kind of government. There ought to be no dragging, no waiting for last minute effects, or to see if somebody else won't do it.

The business of every man who can afford it, whether he has a small house paid for on the installment plan, or manages a big "house" that does a business of a hundred millions or more, is to make it clear, here and all over the world, that this country is satisfied with its government, pleased with its victory and willing to pay for it.

Some of the "big men" take too much to heart the fact that the income tax, as they put it, "confiscated their property." One man with an income of five or ten millions said to this writer, with a sad look in his eye:

"My estate is worth today less than half what it was worth five years ago."

Perhaps so, but it is still worth half. Many in Russia would be glad to get back half. Magnates in Hungary that looked upon themselves as the perpetually elect and favored of the Lord would be very glad to get back one-tenth.

Those that live in this country secure—and are going to stay secure—should be willing to pay for security. They should buy these Victory Bonds and announce oversubscription not three weeks from now, after beating tom-toms night and day, but before the end of this week.

The thing is going to be done, and the time to do it is now.

J. Pierpont Morgan remarked after he had scrambled the steel business of the country into one dish:

"You can't unscramble eggs."

And it was true.

The United States tried to unscramble the "Oil Trust." The result was a joke. Once scrambled, always scrambled. Morgan knew.

He died, however, without finding out that the thing applies to eggs of ALL KINDS, whether laid by the domestic hens of Wall Street or the wild duck of Bolshevism.

They have scrambled the eggs in Russia, in Hungary, in Bavaria, and you can't UNSCRAMBLE them.

Twenty million peasants in Russia own land, and will always own it. When a Czar comes back to rule, as he will some day, there will be no unscrambling. Everything will be taken as it is.

Those that were dropped down

Great Britain and France Disturbed by Japanese and Italian Claims

Washington, April 23.—Italy will be given Fiume by the allies rather than see her desert the peace conference, the International News learned from an authoritative source today. Advices make it plain that Italy will not be allowed to withdraw from the conference, because her action would again upset the peace of Europe.

London, April 23.—The Japanese delegates have resolved to withdraw from the peace conference if their demand for Kiao-Chau is not satisfied before the Germans arrive at Versailles, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Paris today. The Japanese, says the correspondent, are insisting upon an immediate decision.

Fake War Heroes Are Suffering From "Egocentrism"

By International News Service.

New York, April 23.—"Egocentrism," a state of mind resulting from strained nerves and thrilling experiences, is affecting many soldiers returning from France, a psychopathic expert at Bellevue Hospital declared today. It is "egocentrism," he said, that led many returning soldiers to wear decorations to which they are not entitled and to tell tales of alleged heroism in battles in which they did not participate.

Major-General John F. O'Ryan, who commanded the 27th Division in France, warned the public against being deceived by "fake heroes." The provost marshal's office declared that an investigation of 1,269 cases showed that 70% of every five men wearing decorations were doing so without authority.

CAMBRIDGE TUBE BILL REPORTED

State Would Buy $8,000,000 Subway of "L," but Would Insist on Rental

A bill under which the State would take over the Cambridge Tunnel from the Boston Elevated Railway Company and pay $8,000,000 for it, was reported favorably to the Massachusetts Legislature today, by the Committees on Metropolitan Affairs and Street Railways, sitting jointly.

The same committees reported unfavorably upon the proposals that the $2,000,000 rental which the Elevated pays the city yearly be raised by general taxation instead of by increased fares. A fight is expected in the House when the latter measure comes up.

There was a minority report on the bill for the taking over of Cambridge Tunnel. The following dissented: Senator John J. Mahoney, Representatives James H. Brennan, Arnold, Clarke, McDonald, Feinberg and Costello.

The advocates of the bill on the committees declared that it simply meant that some time in the future the State would pay to the Elevated company the $1,000,000 which his construction of the tunnel cost, and this sum would be available for improvements and operation, possibly resulting in lower fares.

The road would then pay the State an annual rental for the tunnel, as it now pays the city for those tunnels lying within city limits.

The proposal to raise the $2,000,000 rental fees by taxation was beaten in committee in spite of the plea of the public trustees of the Boston Elevated, who had urged that the subway benefits others than habitual car riders, and these others should share the burden.

$13,840,000 Gain in New England for Loan Drive

Canton has gone over the top in the Victory Loan drive.

Right on the heels of Southboro, the honor flag winner, came the second town in Massachusetts to oversubscribe its quota. The town had been allotted $330,000. It went over with a margin of $12,000.

All over Boston, Massachusetts and New England are these significant indications that on its third day the Victory Loan drive is "hitting on all six."

New Hampshire added two more to her over-the-top list today—Lyme and Northumberland. Vermont — coming through with five more—Ripton, Shaftsbury, Hyde Park, Fair Haven and Cavendish.

WORK GOES SMOOTHLY.

With these cities and towns reported today, the total number that had oversubscribed quotas in New England was fifty-four.

Like a smoothly working automobile in the Victory Loan drive running on its third day as is demonstrated by the report of the Federal Reserve Bank, which shows a total of $13,840,000 in subscription from the New England district for the second day. And this total was reached with the reports still to be received from five banks missing.

Connecticut subscribed $7,358,600 of this total, covering the second day; Connecticut followed with $2,411,000; Vermont, $1,246,000; New Hampshire, $858,050; Rhode Island, $750,000, and Maine, $257,900.

The first day's total was $31,577,850, and the total of the second day added to this makes a grand total of $45,417,000 up to date.

Boston's gross total for the first two days as reported today was $21,161,000. A large amount credited to other cities and towns will be taken from this total.

Anti-Bolshevik Army Administers Crushing Defeat, Capturing 25,000 Prisoners

By International News Service.

London, April 23.—The recapture of Bolshezerkli, in Northern Russia, by the allied forces was officially announced today.

The Bolshevik troops abandoned a large quantity of stores as well as two field guns and 1,000 rounds of ammunition for three-inch field guns. Prisoners were captured by the allies also.

Bolshevik deserters are joining the loyal Russian contingent, strengthening its morale.

Official advices from Archangel mention the excellent work and spirit of the American engineer companies fighting on this front.

Admiral Kolchak's anti-Bolshevik army has inflicted another crushing defeat upon the Bolshevik forces, capturing 25,000 prisoners, said a news agency dispatch from Omsk today.

Izhevsk was taken. Much booty was captured from the Bolsheviks, who fled panic stricken before the advance of the victorious Siberian army.

MILLION VISITORS TO YD DAY

Great Throng Headed Here From All Parts of New England

Boston will be the host of more than a million visitors tomorrow and Friday, it is estimated, here to view the great parade of the Yankee Division when it will march in final review on the latter day before thousands of proud parents, relatives and friends of New England war heroes before they are mustered out of the service and return to civil life.

By command of Major-General Hale every man in Friday's parade will march at the rate of 120 steps per minute. One officer from each regiment will act as pacemaker and march with the division flag of honor. Men of the greatest physical stature have been selected for the detail.

A non-commissioned officer will be at each civilian hand stationed along the line of march to co-ordinate the playing between those bands and the bands of the division.

OFFICERS TO RIDE.

Those officers of the division staff will ride in the parade: Major-General Harry C. Hale, commanding division; Colonels John H. Allen and William H. Dolan, Lieutenant-Colonels John D. Murphy, Charles A. Stevens, Alfred F. Foote, Elon F. Tandy, Albert Greenleaf, Hamilton R. Horsey and Thomas L. Jenkins.

Diphtheria Cases on Battleship Prevent Usual Welcome at Commonwealth Pier

Bringing from France the last big detachment of the Yankee Division, the battleship New Jersey docked at Commonwealth Pier this afternoon, debarking 1,187 officers and men for Camp Devens.

Due to the fact that cases of diphtheria had been discovered aboard the New Jersey, the army authorities were reluctantly forced to cancel passes issued to relatives and friends which would have permitted them to visit Commonwealth Pier and perhaps exchange a few words of greeting with their loved ones.

However keen the disappointment of the general public, the official welcome given the veterans aboard the New Jersey, which left Brest on April 16, equalled that given any of the other contingents recently arriving. The usual flotilla of small craft with welcomers went down the harbor and escorted the New Jersey to her berth, whistles blowing joyously.

GENERAL EDWARDS THERE.

And Major-General Clarence R. Edwards found time to visit Commonwealth Pier this afternoon soon after the New Jersey docked and personally greet the latest contingent of his "stout-hearted lads," after weeks of separation.

Aboard the New Jersey were the following units of the 101st Ammunition Train:

TOKIO AND ROME THREATEN TO WITHDRAW ENVOYS

reach an agreement on Italy's demand for Fiume, but the discussions were fruitless, said a Central News dispatch from Paris.

Premier Orlando declared that he was in a position that made it necessary for him to secure the Italian claims in order to save the present Italian ministry from falling.

Meanwhile, the Italian problem, grave as it is, already begins to be pushed to the background by a new tangle in its essentials parallel to the Adriatic dilemma. This is the China-Japanese puzzle. Japan plays the role of Italy, while China appears in that of the Jugo-Slavs.

And again the most uneasy diplomatic skeleton of the war is rattling ominously. For the pact of London gave to Japan Chinese territory captured from the Germans by the Mikado's forces early in the war.

COUNT ON JAP AID.

Like Italy, Japan insists upon her "pound of flesh." Her delegates have not yet assumed the "take it or leave it" position, but their attitude is firm —equally firm as China's—and the Italians are known to count on the Japanese delegates joining them if they leave the conference.

Then there is the secret agreement Japan exacted from China when the other powers were over their heads in the war. In it figures most prominently the Shantung province. In view of President Wilson's stand on the pact of London it is not difficult to figure what his attitude will be toward this agreement.

Japan's strongest ally is Great Britain, and if the matter comes to a show-down, Great Britain will have to declare herself one way or the other.

UP TO ITALIANS.

Thus the atmosphere is surcharged and no man can foretell what the next few days or hours may bring forth.

"President Wilson does not recognize the Treaty of London and Italy's co-signers of that treaty—France and England—are not qualified to request modifications," writes Saint-Brice in Le Journal. "Thus all seems to depend on the Italians letting up in their resistance."

Revolution, Bolshevism, Threaten Italy if Allies Refuse to Give Her Fiume

Paris, April 23.—Revolution will sweep Italy, accompanied by Bolshevism and the collapse of the present ministry at Rome, if the Italian delegates are forced to return to Rome with the decision that Fiume is going to Jugo-Slavs, instead of Italy, according to a prediction made today by Dr. Scarfoglio, editor of the newspaper Mattino of Naples.

"Fiume has a total population of 22,000, of whom 27,000 are Italians," said the editor. "The other 5,000 are mostly Croats. We must flatly decline to leave the fate of the Italians to the Jugo-Slavs. We were prepared to make the sacrifice, giving the Jugo-Slavs equal shipping rights, but we cannot agree that either the city or the port be placed under Jugo-Slav rule. The splendid harbor works were built by the Italians and the secret of the whole fight is the Jugo-Slav desire to seize a ready-made harbor and save themselves the trouble of improving one. There are fourteen Adriatic ports we are willing to leave in the possession of the Jugo-Slavs.

"Italian public opinion is emphatically hostile to any arrangement which would leave the Serbians and Croatians the slightest vestige of authority at Fiume. If the delegates do not agree to any decision this week our delegates will probably go home and explain to the people they were unable to gain satisfaction regarding their aspirations. If Premier Orlando and Baron Sonnino return to Rome with this answer or an unsatisfactory compromise the government will fall and the country very likely will be plunged into revolution.

"Unless the conference promptly recognizes the force of public opinion, this question will force Bolshevism into Italy. Hitherto we were confident that this would not happen, but if it does the movement may spread rapidly and increase the danger threatening the whole of Europe."

Premier Clemenceau regards the Fiume problem as one of the most acute the conference has yet taken up. Discussing it after a conference with Premier Lloyd George and Premier Orlando, Clemenceau said:

"Fiume is a worse question in settle than the Saar Valley. Maybe the people will now recognize that we French are not so unreasonable after all."

HUNDREDS OF PORTUGUESE LEAVE WITH SAVINGS

Providence, April 23.—Hundreds of Portuguese, carrying their savings which amounted in many cases to several thousand dollars, sailed from this port on the Fabre line steamer which took on 600 passengers here bound for the Azores, Lisbon and Marseilles. A large part of this money was said to have been derived in savings from war wages. It is estimated that 4000 of the emigrants were from Massachusetts.

Mabelle Elliott Merriam, popular singer along Broadway, New York.

Does Mabelle Elliott Merriam, singer in show along Broadway, know that her aged mother and her little ten-year-old daughter are in want at No. 91 Gardner street, Allston, and have appealed to the Boston American to locate her, and ask her to come home.

Unless the singer, who has not been heard from since last February, comes to the rescue of those supposedly dear to her, they will be thrown on the charity of strangers.

The mother, Mrs. Walter J. Merriam, is ill, and she is supporting herself and her little granddaughter with the income gained from three rented rooms. Expenses are piling up, money is scarce in the little household and relief from some quarter must come quickly.

BELIEVES IN DAUGHTER.

The mother clings to her faith in her daughter, and believes that her long silence is not explained by indifference or hardness of heart. When last heard from the singer was unable to take employment owing to several operatings upon her nose and throat, and was evidently in straitened circumstances herself.

In the last letter Mrs. Merriam received from her daughter Mabelle said "I am getting only $22 a week and am sending you more than half. The operation is necessary.

"Cheer up, things cannot always be as bad as they seem now for us. There is bound to be a break soon."

After this attempt to cheer the homefolks the Broadway entertainer dropped out of sight completely. Her mother and daughter have no means to go to New York to search for her. Friends who have tried to locate Mabelle Marriam during visits to New York have been unsuccessful.

UNABLE TO KEEP UP STRUGGLE.

The Merriams were in independent circumstances until the death of the father of the family. The elder Mrs. Merriam, left suddenly without funds to face the world again, with a little granddaughter on her hands and herself stricken with illness, is unable to keep up the struggle without assistance.

LOANED NEW CAR TO NEW FRIEND; IT VANISHES

Judge Murray Holds the Borrower, Who Is Serving Time, for the Superior Court

If you had known a man for merely two weeks.

And you had a brand new automobile.

And the man who you knew so very little came up to you and said, "say, friend, lend me your car, won't you? Fact is I got a date with a girl, and I want to take her down to Revere Beach, and I have no car, but you have, come on—lend me——"

If your mere acquaintance said something to you like that—your car being new—would you lend him the car?

Well—um—many would not, care being automobiles.

However, there is at least one most generous man in the world. Judge Michael J. Murray in the Police Court today, called him a "very gracious and unusual man," and recalled him with full measure of judicial admiration.

The man's name is John Clark. His automobile was a Ford. His generous acquaintance, to whom he loaned his car, was Harold B. Turner, and Turner had come from Charles Street Jail today, where he is serving sentence for another offense, to tell what had become of that Ford so generously loaned him.

"He let me have the Ford, your honor, and asked me would I mind driving him to the Arena before I picked up my girl. I told him I would not," said the defendant Turner "in his generosities, too—" and I drove him there. Then I drove to the theatre where my girl was to meet me. But she didn't meet me.

"So I drove the car back to the Arena, went in to the fight, and when I came out the car was gone. I made up my mind Mr. Clark, the owner, had come out before me and gone away with his car. But he hadn't. I do not know what became of it, your honor. Somebody must have stolen it."

Gravity in the government. Drive severe. Ponderings of the judge. Then the decision. "I do not feel quite certain that is the story," said the Judge. "The court declines jurisdiction. Let the case go to the Superior Court, where they know you better."

VISITORS FOR PARADE BEGIN TO ARRIVE

More Than Million Expected to View 20,000 Y. D. Marchers on Friday

that concern whether they are discharged from the army, it was stated at the camp today.

Majors Hale and McCain came to Boston today to be guests of the Brookline Country Club at a dinner.

Details of the parade Friday afternoon have been completed and the giant task now facing the hospitality committee is the housing of this immense influx of people. Churches, societies and private families have hospitably thrown open their doors that none may find themselves at night without shelter, and yet it is doubtful if hundreds who will be forced to remain in Boston until Saturday will be cared for.

Theatre men have also lent their aid and G. H. Lothrop has tendered the use of the Howard and Bowdoin Square Theatres and the Grand Opera House to the committee for tomorrow and Friday nights to house those unable to obtain accommodations.

The Central Congregational Church of Dorchester and the First Parish Unitarian and Broadway Baptist Churches of Cambridge have joined with other churches in keeping open all night Friday night and coffee and blankets will be provided for their guests.

The Legislature will occupy seats in the stand on the site of John Hancock house.

State allotments have been made as follows: Maine delegation will be seated on Commonwealth avenue, north side near Charlesgate; New Hampshire, between Gloucester and Exeter streets; Vermont, Commonwealth avenue, between Dartmouth and Exeter streets; Rhode Island, on Commonwealth avenue, near Charlesgate South.

The parade will be reviewed by General Edwards at Columbus square, and by General Hale at the corner of Columbus avenue and West Canton street.

The 101st Infantry stand is at the corner of Exeter and five months, reaching to Clarendon street, and the Silke have a 600-foot stand on Boylston street, near the Lenox.

Special schedules will be maintained by railroad, elevated and street car lines to accommodate the great mass of traffic which they will be forced to handle the day of the parade. Extra trains and cars will be run on the New Haven, Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine railroads for the distant points.

20,000 MEN IN FIVE.

The Daughters of the Nation will keep open house for Y. D. boys and their friends in the Red Cross Building next to the Food Facts Cottage on Boston Common. Coffee and sandwiches will be served any guests who visit it.

It is estimated by officials at the various recruitment depots that 20,000 men will be in line in the parade. Of these, 14,000 will be the five regiments of the 26th, the remainder consisting of wounded and discharged men.

Assistant Secretary of War Crowell will arrive here Friday morning and will review the parade with Governor Coolidge at the State House grandstand, as the representative of Secretary Baker.

WILL USE BOYS WELL.

Special preparations are being made at the Boston Navy Yard's navy canteen on the Common for the entertainment of the Y. D. men during the last three days of the week and on Sunday. Fruit punch, home-made cakes and cigarettes will be freely distributed.

The Yankee Division is to be brought from Camp Devens in two sections, and the first will reach Boston on the morning of the parade and return to Camp Devens on Saturday.

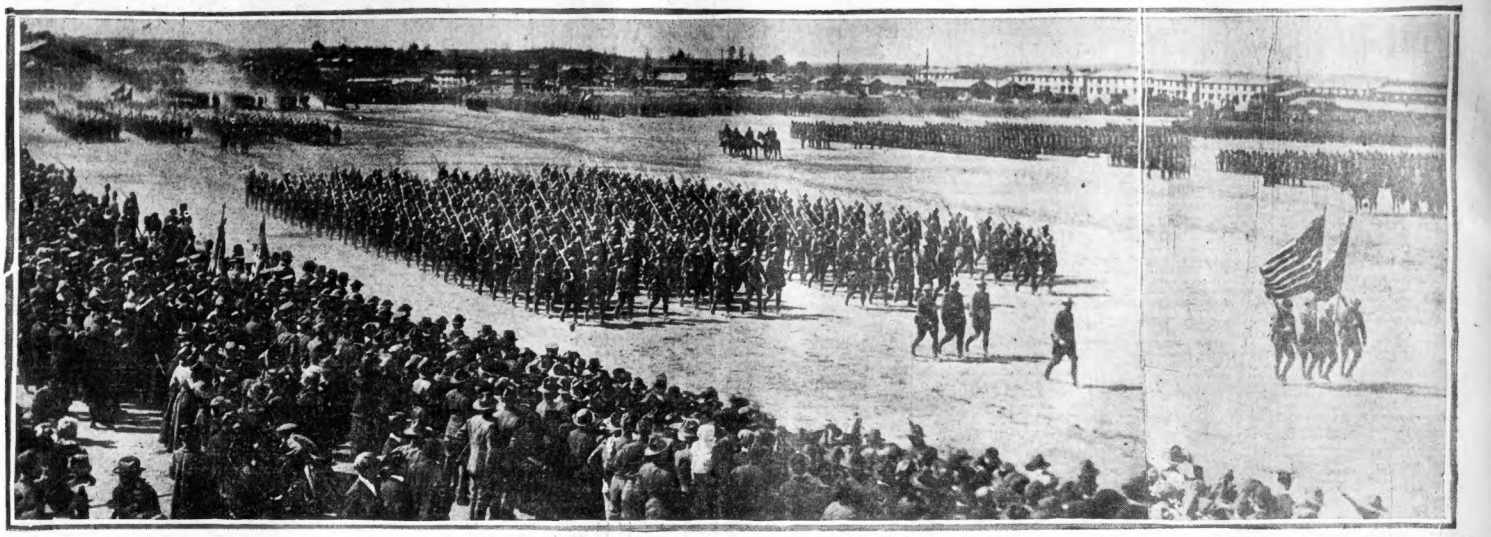
YANKEE DIVISION PASSING IN REVIEW BEFORE GENERAL EDWARDS AND SIX NEW ENGLAND GOVERNORS



HAS 2 HUSBANDS BUT SAYS ONE WILL DO

Wife, Thinking First Dead, Weds Again; Now Wants Annulment

"When Thomas M. Lucas and his wife, Mrs. Lillian M. Lucas, both of Quincy, were married at Bangor, Me., September 3, 1913, both had visions of a long stretch of connubial bliss.

They lived happily as man and wife at Boston and Wollaston until a few weeks ago.

Then Mrs. Lucas, who was a widow when she wedded Mr. Lucas, or believed she was, was astounded to learn that her first husband was very much alive.

Now she has brought an action in the Norfolk Superior Court for the nullification of her marriage to Lucas.

WANTS MARRIAGE NULLIFIED.

She declares that she was lawfully married to Arthur L. Hewitt, now of Taunton, at Taunton, Mass., on April 23, 1913, and that she lived with Hewitt about two weeks at Taunton.

She insists she was credibly informed on May 14, 1913, that Hewitt had committed suicide and, therefore, no longer living. Acting upon what she believed to be reliable evidence that Hewitt was dead, she says she married Mr. Lucas at Bangor September 3, 1913.

HAVE OBEYED LAW.

It is declared by Mrs. Lucas that she has recently learned that Mr. Hewitt is now, or at least has been since her marriage to Mr. Lucas, a resident of Providence, R. I., and that she and Lucas since learning of the existence of Hewitt have sought to conduct themselves in strict compliance with the law.

Since her marriage to Lucas she states that he and she have purchased real estate at Wollaston, including a dwelling house and land, by warranty deed. As she paid her share, she claims a half interest in the property, which is subject to taxes. She also asks for the right to resume her former name, Mrs. Lillian M. Hewitt.

WOULD GIVE PARADE FUND TO SOLDIERS

Former Head of Public Safety Committee Praises American's Fight for Bonus

Editor American:

Having been in exceptionally close contact with the many war activities that have been very essential during the past two years, I want to personally thank your paper and to voice my approval and endorsement for the splendid work you have done, and are still doing in endeavoring to obtain the six months' bonus pay for our soldiers and sailors.

Your efforts are very much appreciated by all the boys in the service with whom it has been my good fortune to come in contact, and the opinions of these returning soldiers would be very interesting to the politicians, if they could understand how the majority of them feel about the coming parade.

The city of Boston and the State are spending over half a million dollars to furnish an entertainment for the relatives of these men and the citizens of Boston. It is going to be a very patriotic and inspiring sight to watch these heroes march through our streets equipped in full marching order, giving us a striking example of the way they went over the top to victory.

But what real service have we rendered them? Would it not have been better to have taken the money we are spending and to have given each one of these men a hundred dollars or more, if it were possible, so that when they are discharged, as the majority will be within a few days, they will be equipped with sufficient funds to put them back in the civil life prepared and better fortified to struggle for the old job?

As an ex-regular from the United States Army, I feel that the soldiers would appreciate this as a real service and carry back into private life the feeling that their efforts had been rewarded in a more practical and better way than with only a few cheers.

VICTOR A. HEATH,
Former Chairman

JUDGE ORDERS DISCHARGE OF SUFFRAGIST

Tells Jury to Dismiss Case of Mrs. Jack Arrested on Day of Wilson's Visit

Judge Callahan in Superior Court today dismissed the case of the suffragists charged with violating the law with regard to speaking upon Boston Common without a permit on the day of the President's visit. The judge ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty in the case of Mrs. Cerise Carmen Jack of Walpole, wife of Professor Jack of Harvard.

The ruling of the court was to the effect that as the arrest was made before Mrs. Jack had begun her speech, she could not be charged with violating that statute.

Mrs. Jack was defended by Mrs. Katherine A. Morey, one of the most prominent members of the National Woman's Party, and the courtroom was packed with the loyal friends of the suffragists, many wearing the purple, gold and white sashes of the Woman's Party.

Mrs. Morey had begun an eloquent speech in defence of her client, when the sudden ruling of the court terminated the speech and the trial at the same time.

50'000 CHEER 26TH DIVISION IN REVIEW

Military Spectacle at Camp Devens an Impressive Event

Camp Devens, Ayer, April 23.—Solid ranks of khaki marching across the cantonment drill field, with a clear blue sky overhead and a brilliant sunlight streaming down upon the men, while 50,000 persons looked on, made the final review of the Yankee Division here a scene long to be remembered.

The immense crowd of spectators were lined ten or more deep around three sides of the field while hundreds of soldiers connected with other organizations than those of the 26th Division found a vantage point on the roofs of nearby barracks.

SIX NEW ENGLAND GOVERNORS.

A massed band played "Madelon" as the Governors of the six New England States, present as guests of the Yankee Division, took their places for the review, while the men upon whom were to be bestowed citations and medals for bravery on the field of battle took their positions in front of the massed colors of the various units of the division in the centre of the field.

When the regimental and battalion colors were decorated with the battle ribbons, which will serve temporarily until the permanent decorations are ready, the crowd broke forth in hearty applause.

Many an eye was tear-dimmed as the father of Private Michael Perkins, 19 Company, 101st Infantry, and the only civilian in the group, came forward to receive the decoration in behalf of his son, who was killed in action in France, after having performed one of the most heroic individual deeds of the war.

Mr. Perkins stood up 12 spellbound while Major-General Hale talked with him and pinned on his coat the decoration.

FRIENDS APPLAUD.

Relatives and friends of the men applauded as the citations and decorations were presented individually by Major-General Hale and Major-General Edwards. During the ceremony the massed band played "Till We Meet Again."

As Major-General Clarence R. Edwards came out on the field, the crowd burst into hearty applause, while the band struck up "Smiles."

"I have called you a stout-hearted lot of lads," said Major-General Edwards, speaking to the line of cited men before him. "It makes my heart pulsate with pride to see you today. We division commanders know that the men selected deserve what they have won, and we also know that there are many of your fellows whose gallant deeds have escaped us, and whom we would be glad to decorate.

"The six governors of the New England states shook hands in turn with every decorated man.

Then followed the fine review.

Demand Wage Increase and Recognition of Right of Collective Bargaining

Two hundred members of the Boston Photo Engravers' Union went on strike today for an increase of 10 per cent. in wages and the recognition of the right of collective bargaining. Through President William McNeil they declared that their employer had acted in an autocratic manner in refusing to meet them in conference to discuss their demands.

Commercial color printing and photographic printing in black and white are affected by the strike. Boston newspapers are not affected by the strike, as an argument was executed a short time ago in which the men were given an increase of 21 per cent. Advertising and magazine work will be hard hit, the strikers declare.

The minimum wage is now $25 per week, which the strikers ask to have increased by 10 per cent. and all wages above this sum. The strikers claim that in the UNited States and Canada there are only 5,000 expert photo-engravers.

In 1910, when the photo-engravers struck for the closed shop, their employers secured seventeen injunctions against them. The union leaders were vindicated, however, in court. This time they ask that the preferential clause, favoring union men, shall be inserted in future contracts.

CANTON IS SECOND TOWN "OVER"

LOAN IS SWEEPING AHEAD

Reports From New England Show Great Drive Is Running Smoothly

Boston's subscription on the second day was $3,144,000.

Regarded as significant is the fact that interest in the loan is spreading rapidly to individuals, 12,413 individual subscribers being represented in the loan to date.

HELMET SWELLS FUND.

A mass meeting in the Town Hall sent Canton over the top. This was the second subscription meeting held and was featured by the auctioning of a German helmet for a $7,450 subscription to the fifth loan. No big fuss was made about the first two notes of the Victory issue. Canton subscribed $100,000 at an open air rally on Patriots' Day and today reported more than 1,000 individual subscribers to its over-subscription.

The Treasury Department wired the Liberty Loan Committee of New England today that the Victory ship which is sailing from San Francisco to New York, regulating its progress to match the progress of the country in subscribing the $4,500,000,000 of the Victory Liberty Loan, had reached 300 miles out from San Francisco on the way to San Diego.

Unofficial estimates by Treasury Department officials in Washington today placed total subscriptions to the Victory Loan at the end of the second day's drive at nearly $500,000,000. Reports were slow in coming in, they stated, but from those in hand they roughly estimated that subscriptions so far had been at the rate of a quarter of a billion a day.

CHICAGO GOING STRONG.

Chicago today wired the Treasury Department that the loan activities of the second day were at the same high pitch of enthusiasm that featured the drive on the opening day. Fifty foreign language meetings, attended by 50,000 persons, were held, together with band concerts and a monster chorus at the Victory Forum. Drills and firing of giant coast defense guns added to the enthusiasm in Chicago. Reports from the entire district were highly encouraging. The district has adopted a new slogan, "Let's finish the job in a week."

Maximized sales of $20,000,000 at the closing of business last night were reported to Washington from the Cleveland district. Sixty-one honor flags have been awarded against thirty-one at the end of the second day of the fourth loan drive. Soldiers are proving successful solicitors.

The city of Cleveland reports sales of $5,630,000. Minneapolis reported conditions throughout the district as "entirely satisfactory." The bad state of the roads is delaying reports of the work of the various loan organizations, it was said.

More than $5,500,000 has been subscribed in the two days in the Kansas City district. It was reported. Fifteen counties in Oklahoma already have gone over.

From San Francisco came the report that 16 of the 35 counties in the State of Oregon had oversubscribed at the end of the first day.

Total official subscriptions to the loan in the Second Federal Reserve District, New York, came to $80,517,-760 before noon today, but unofficial figures, representing subscriptions pledged, but which have not yet passed through the bank, place the total at about $110,000,000. The Standard Oil Company of New York and New Jersey and subsidiaries subscribed $1,000,000 today.

Jewish Loan Workers Sell $25,000 in Notes Within Single Day

More than $25,000 worth of Victory Notes were sold in the past twenty-four hours by members of the Liberty Loan Jewish committee in the canvass of Jewish residents of Greater Boston. The general spirit of enthusiasm now among both workers and the Jewish men and women during the first two days of the drive convinced the Jewish committee that their slogan, "A Victory Note in Every Jewish Home" will be successful.

Max Mitchell, director general of the Liberty Loan Jewish committee, announces that several out-of-town committees reported that every Jewish family in their district had subscribed for Victory Notes. The committees have established stands in the Jewish sections of Boston where Victory Notes may be purchased.

Throughout the day many subscriptions poured into the headquarters of the Jewish committee at the Pemberton Building, where a large staff of young women are employed indexing every Jewish resident of the city.

Beginning tonight several automobiles decorated with flags and bunting will tour Boston and vicinity, and young women dressed to impersonate "Liberty" will sell loans from the autos.

Prince Henry is the former Kaiser's only brother and up to Germany's collapse was the nominal head of the German navy. Shortly after the ex-emperor's flight to Holland Prince Henry began a nation-wide campaign for the protection of his brother and formed a league for the personal safety of the ex-Kaiser, of which he is the head. Prince Henry's name has been frequently linked with rumors of monarchist counter-revolutionary plots.

Here Is the "Breaker"

Where Coal Is Prepared for Domestic Use

YOU may always be sure that the tallest building in the vicinity of a mine entrance is the breaker. Built of wood, which best responds to the tremendous vibration to which the building is subjected, the breaker is of vital importance in making anthracite coal marketable.

The coal, as it comes out of the mine, is hoisted to the top of the breaker, drops by gravity, is crushed between rollers, passes over great iron screens, and runs through separating cylindrical screens and chutes. The slate and other impurities are removed by running water, or by hand-picking as illustrated in the main picture.

The coal passes downward as shown in the picture until the following sizes are all separated. The following table will be of interest to the public, as it gives the approximate sizes in which coal is obtainable:

Broken or Furnace	Thru 3½ inch mesh, Over 2⅝ inch mesh	Nut	Thru 1 inch mesh, Over ¾ inch mesh
Egg	Thru 2⅝ inch mesh, Over 2 inch mesh	Pea	Thru ¾ inch mesh, Over ½ inch mesh
Stove	Thru 2 inch mesh, Over 1 inch mesh	Buckwheat	Thru ½ inch mesh, Over 3/16 inch mesh

Small picture shows mesh over which coal is run.

Coal cars are run directly under the breaker, where the coal is fed into them. The coal you see passing in a Metropolitan truck has been carefully prepared in this way. It is all part of that responsibility to the public which we term Metropolitan service.

UNIVERSITY PAYS TRIBUTE OF LOVE TO MRS. HEARST

Regents, Faculty and Students of Great California Institution Hold Memorial Meeting in Shadow of Buildings Erected by Her for the Advancement of Mankind.

San Francisco, April 23.—The children of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, the faculty and students of the University of California, paid her yesterday one of the most beautiful tributes that could be offered to a woman.

Gray-haired professors, learned men and women, alumni, students—they gathered at the Hearst Greek Theatre to call her "Mother."

The services were the more impressive for their simplicity. They were an expression of love and reverence from hearts and minds enlarged by the opportunities which Mrs. Hearst had part in giving them.

Gratitude for the material gifts which Mrs. Hearst had bestowed lavishly upon the university and for the fact that death should have taken her away were but minor strains in the symphony that was built upon the theme of abiding joy left by a life of goodness and wisdom.

AS THE MEADOW LARKS SANG.

Above the theatre, meadow larks were singing on the hillside. A single wreath of lilacs hung upon the altar, suggesting that note of solemn and triumphant transition between life and death of "When lilacs last in the dooryard bloomed."

"We are gathered in Joy," said Jessica Blanche Peixotte, representing the alumnae. Her life meant opportunity to the rising generation."

Below the theatre clustered the buildings, quiet and deserted for the holiday which had been one of the happiest of Mrs. Hearst's works.

"She builded better than she knew," said John Alexander Britton, representing the regents.

A distinguished group in cap and gown, the faculty of the University and officers of the military school, in uniform, occupied the centre of the amphitheatre.

"Her children rise up and call her blessed," said Charles Mills Gayley, dean of the faculty.

Students came from their class rooms and dormitories with their customary accoutrement of textbooks under their arms.

NOTE OF UNIVERSAL FAITH.

"She was our best friend," said Frank Fox Hargear, president of the associated students. "We cannot think of the university without her."

Then in simple and heartfelt words one after another the various departments of the university paid their tributes. And when they had finished. President Benjamin Ide Wheeler said:

"The meeting is ended."

Deeply religious in its atmosphere, there was no note of creed or church. The memorial services sounded that note of common and universal faith which men have striven vainly as yet to reach.

A section of the theatre had been reserved for relatives of Mrs. Hearst. Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mr. and Mrs. Apperson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Clark and practically all of the relatives in the vicinity of the bay district were present.

President Wheeler said:

"We are not here not to mourn so much as to set forth the record of a youthful and noble life. Phoebe Apperson Hearst: gentlewoman and public servant. By native instinct she followed the quieter paths, but the possession of power and of rare gifts of mind opened before her a duty toward her fellow-man which she did not evade.

A BURNING DESIRE.

"So bring light and love into the life of others, that was her burning desire. To forward every good purpose which helped young progress their birthright, this was open door to obligation. As public school teacher led on through one thankless task after another to opportunity to one trusteeship after another, and to the regency of the university, from whose meetings, after assumed the trust, she was seldom absent.

"She rejoiced in the continuous tides of young life which refreshened the brook beds of her college as from some fountain of perpetual youth. She heard, gladly, the voice of children. Art and love of beauty, as hand maidens of order, commanded her zeal, and her first interest lay in these early arts of human life which represented the emergence of human personality into the light.

"One of her last desires was personal, and that proved her death-bed wish that she might live to build one of the buildings whereby shall be the first unit of that art museum which she had planned for and gathered collections already given to the university.

"In these last days her mind singularly clear she was always thinking of the many things she had yet to do, and managed to send the most injunctions to give so much to do, and the hours so short.

"It was a full, rich, abundant life that we lived, a life abroad as always in part, often in pain, but a great, life—a great life, gloriously worth while, because those who lived that the community wherein she lived is greatly and nobly bettered thereby.

"Phoebe Apperson Hearst—gentlewoman, public servant—as blessing to her day and generation. I introduce to you the first speaker of these exercises, one who is not here to represent women—she represents herself, the university and the alumni body—Dr. Jessica Blanche Peixotto."

DR. PEIXOTTO'S TRIBUTE.

Dr. Peixotto said:

"When we gather here we gather not, as our President has said, to mourn, but to commemorate; to look backward that we may learn more bravely, more really to live; that we may go forward through what we learn from the lives finished perfectly.

"This woman whom we gather here to think about led a life that more than ordinarily expressed a life of a perfect round. There are thousands who have lived for culture, for beauty. There are thousands who have lived strongly and intensively for the joy of living, for the service of life.

"But we think today of one who did live the round of life. Possessed of more than the average of education, of much more than the usual amount of beauty and personality; possessed of wealth, of opportunity of travel, she never let any one of these presumed-to-be lures of life turn her from life's real substance.

"She lived fully, freely, bravely, and because she lived that way, we gather here to rejoice in having known her, in having perhaps, most of all, known her as our Mrs. Hearst.

"I am thinking of her as an alumna of this university should think of her. I am thinking of her even as one Mrs. Hearst. I am thinking of her in the days when I was a student here. She came first about this university, a gentle, beautiful presence, that first of all brought thoughts of beauty, of personality, of kindness, of womanhood."

Only American Stores Now Offering Fresh Haddock at Five Cents

Several new sites are being considered for Boston American Fish Markets. In South Boston, which has proved to be one of the chief fish-buying centres, efforts are being made to secure a store which will serve the big population of this section.

A new site not far from the old one is now under consideration and residents of South Boston interested in lowering the cost of living should read every edition of the Boston American daily for notices of the opening of a new store in their locality.

A new store in Lowell is also in contemplation, as are stores in Hyde Park, Brockton and Quincy.

Fresh fish will shortly be coming into the Boston market in quantity and fixtures are being arranged in the Boston American Fish Stores to handle all varieties of fresh fish at rock-bottom prices.

Yesterday the Boston American Stores, through the preparations made by Allen A. Mills, were the only stores in Greater Boston able to offer freshly caught haddock at five cents a pound.

Owing to comparatively small receipts the wholesale price of this variety took a jump, and the retailers found themselves unable to sell fresh haddock for less than 7 or 8 cents. But the Boston American stores, working always in the interests of the public, were still selling haddock at 5 cents a pound.

Allen A. Mills, from his office at No. 101 Tremont street, continues to ship vast quantities of fresh caught cod and haddock, finnan haddie and salt codfish to all sections of New England.

FRANCE WANTS OVER MILLION ITALIANS

Needed for Rebuilding; Italy, Preparing for Enormous Emigration, Watches U. S. Laws

Paris, April 23.—The French government has appealed to Italy to furnish over 1,000,000 workmen, mostly laborers, to assist in rebuilding Northern France, it was learned today. Italy replied that she was disposed to grant the request, but at the same time desired assurances that France would not object to the building of Italian schools for the children in the workmen's families.

The French government has not yet consented, and the negotiations have been temporarily suspended. It is believed, however, they will be concluded in a way satisfactory to both sides a little later.

In the meantime Italy is preparing for a gigantic emigration movement, it is believed that there will ease the economic situation and lighten the burden on the labor market. Naturally the Italian government is anxiously watching any tendency to revise the immigration laws in the United States.

But, regardless of any action that may be taken by the American Congress, it is believed that there will be enough work in the war-devastated regions of Europe to care for all of the Italians who wish to leave home. France and Belgium could take care of 2,000,000, it is thought.

So far 700,000 Italian troops have been demobilized, and there are still 2,500,000 with the colors. A large number will be retained in the service until land and sea transportation facilities get better, so as to assist the emigration movement.

Slip a TOURAINE ALMOND BAR into your pocket. A good picture shows is all the better for a good bite to go with it. And you know that TOURAINE CHOCOLATE —Made the Real French Way— and lots of almonds—is a feast to itself.

Listen, Boston!

Do you want the B-E-S-T?

BEFORE I went into the Almond Bar business I knew there was room—plenty of it—for a best almond bar.

There was a best cracker; a best flour; a best corn flake; in fact, a best of almost everything.

Why not a best almond bar?

I know and you know that you can't make a best anything unless you use the best materials.

Most people agree that chocolate made the French way is the best. It is mellow, rich and crispy—it tastes just right.

I went over to France to find out for myself how to make that kind of chocolate—and you bet I found out.

People who know will tell you that the best almonds come from Italy and Spain. They're big and sweet, and roast to a flavor that cannot be matched.

My Touraine Bars are chock-full of those almonds. I won't use any other kind.

Now, how can I put the best chocolate, the best almonds, lots of them, in my Touraine Bar and sell it for not one cent more than other bars?

I couldn't, if it weren't for my automatic chocolate mixer, thermo, moulder, and cooler, all-in-one.

The process is mine. The machine is mine.

It took me over two years to perfect that machine; with it, it costs me less money to put 50% more almonds in my Touraine Bar than it does the fellow who s-l-o-w-l-y drops them in one-by-one.

Touraine Bars come in the Yellow Packages, not "chocolate-colored" ones.

And I'm making 1,000,000 of them every day.

QUIZ PARENTS OF WIFE HELD AS SLAYER

Police Seek Light on Married Life of Mr. and Mrs. Fisher

Boston police are in Lewiston, Me., today seeking from the parents of Marie Olivine Fisher of No. 529 Columbus avenue, a history of the wedded life of the twenty-year-old girl and her twenty-four-year-old husband, Eugene Fisher, who was found dead in bed at their home yesterday with a thirty-eight calibre bullet in his brain.

The girl still maintains her innocence of the murder of her husband, but the police say they have evidence at the present to fill one of the gaps in the story with herself, but that her courage failed her when it came to a plan for self-destruction.

The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor, highly respected residents of Lewiston. The latter confirm a story that their daughter is near nervous breakdown as a result of the tragedy, which has shocked Lewiston, where the young couple were well known.

'TOTE OF GOSSIPING TONGUES.

The father of Eugene Fisher lives at Minot, Me., not far from Lewiston. He also will be questioned by Police Sergeant William J. Carey of the East Dedham street station.

A letter found among the effects of Mrs. Fisher conveyed a farewell to her mother, according to Medical Examiner Leary, and expressed a determination to do away with herself and her husband. This letter was never delivered, but Mrs. Taylor will be cross-examined as to whether other letters of the same tenor were ever written by her daughter.

The letter is written in French, and spoke of "gossiping tongues" as the reason for her decision. The Fishers have had a stormy existence since they were married two years ago, say family friends who have told their stories. The young husband was in the navy, serving on the transport America, and was a member of her crew when she sank at the docks in Brooklyn.

He was discharged in February, and brought his wife from her Lewiston home to the apartment he had prepared for her in the South End. Their life was no happier there, evidently, for neighbors have testified that their quarrels in the last few weeks were frequent and of increasing violence.

Two letters, found among Mrs. Fisher's personal effects after her arrest are in the possession of Medical Examiner Leary. The one to her mother requested that "Eugene and herself be buried together in the Lewiston cemetery where members of her family have always been laid to rest." It asks forgiveness for the proposed deed.

REVEALS SUICIDE PLAN.

The second letter is in English, and is addressed to the police. It is the strongest link in the chain of evidence against her. It speaks of the slandering tongues which had assailed her and declared she could stand it no longer.

The letter signified her intention to commit suicide, and stated that she would not permit her husband to live after her, and have his mind poisoned against her by the gossips who were ruining her reputation.

The letters were found in the waste paper basket in the Fisher home after the shooting, and had been torn to pieces. Examiner Leary pieced them together, and will turn them over to the district attorney's office.

The letters in the hands of the authorities and the testimony that Mrs. Fisher purchased the revolver which was found lying on her husband's dead body yesterday, are the principal features of the State's case against her.

War Work Hastens Death of Prof. Files of Bowdoin

COURT FIGHT ON FOR CASSIDY MILLIONS

Noted Boston Lawyers in the $6,000,000 Case at Bangor, Me.

Bangor, Me., April 22.—The fight for the Cassidy millions began here today in the Supreme Court. Prominent Boston lawyers are opposed to each other in the case.

The estate of the late John Cassidy, banker, lumber man and merchant, is estimated as between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. According to the terms of the will as annuity "not to exceed $10,000 a year" was left to three children and one grandchild. These are the four now making an appeal.

Another son, James W. Cassidy, is defending the will, claiming that the annuities are sufficient for all reasonable wants of his brothers and sisters, and that their father did not consider that they were capable of handling large sums of money.

Those contesting the will are Mrs. Mary A. Murphy, Mrs. Clara E. O'Brien, daughters of the dead millionaire; John Cassidy, a son, and wife for Keyths Lucille Rice, child of a deceased daughter, who is represented by her father, John H. Rice. The only other heir is their brother, James W. Cassidy, who under the will was appointed administrator, with the same annuity as the others, but with a salary of $10,000 a year for his services in management of the estate.

James is said to have been always closely associated with his father in their various business concerns and has accumulated more than a million of his own.

The contesting heirs claim that their father was not of sound mind when the will was made; that the document is not a true expression of his intentions, and that he was unduly influenced. Each demands an equal share of the property, which, they contend, was the division long ago intended by their father and by him so stated to them.

Among the matters of unusual interest that will be introduced in the hearing is the expenditure by James W. Cassidy of $150,000 for a tomb for his father and himself in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. This he claims was built at his father's personal expense.

A great array of counsel has been engaged. Those for the will being Sherman L. Whipple of Boston, Ryder & Hudson of Bangor and Bertram L. Smith of Patten; for the contestants, Daniel Cranley of Boston, William R. Pattangall of Augusta and Fellows & Fellows of Bangor.

8-Hour Day at Last For Domestic Service

The eight-hour day for domestic service!

At last the millennium for wage-earners who have toiled in the kitchens of their mistresses "from rosy dawn to dewey eve"—and long after that.

A Boston paper, fulfilling the prophecy of students of domestic economy, heralds the advent of THE DAY, in its advertising columns. A Brookline woman advertises for "an intelligent woman to do domestic work on business house hours, 7:30 to 4:30; hour for lunch. Live at your own home and hang yourself."

The servant girl is coming into her own. With an eight-hour day, an hour for lunch, time that she can actually call her own, her evenings to herself, she can look upon the factory girl and the office girl with disdain.

The eight-hour day for servants indicates the abrupt ending of the servant problem and the coming into the discard that period when it was true that "woman's work is never done."

During his campaign for mayor he was arrested for libel, jailed on refusing bail and went on editing his newspaper from within prison walls. He was elected. He was divorced from his first wife, Mrs. Annie L. Howard, of New York, for desertion.

FREE SEATS FOR Y. D. MEN AT BRAVES FIELD

Free seats for Y. D. men in uniform have been reserved at Braves Field both tomorrow and Friday evenings for the Boston-Chicago baseball game in connection with the Yankee Division celebration. A big portrait of General Edwards at the works is to be a feature of the show.

Smith Sights Good Weather for the Y. D. Parade

Forecaster Smith, at the Weather Bureau, announced today:

"From all indications Boston will have good weather for the Yankee Division parade on Friday."

Today's forecast is: "Fair tonight and Thursday, not much change in temperature; moderate, variable winds."

There is unsettled weather in the interior today, and rain is falling in the Ohio and upper Mississippi valleys. It is colder in the northwest and warmer in the west and south.

The lowest temperature in New England was 32 at Northfield, Vt., and the highest 48, at Bennet.

Help! Autos Wanted for Wounded Soldiers

Automobiles for 700 wounded men are wanted to transport the wounded soldiers from the hospitals of Greater Boston to the parking places on the streets intersecting Commonwealth avenue on the route of the parade. This is the only way hundreds of these brave boys will be able to see the parade—they cannot walk.

Owners of motor cars in Greater Boston and Massachusetts who wish to provide cars which will transport from four to six wounded soldiers are requested to communicate by letter or telephone immediately with George A. Crittenden of No. 7f2 Beacon street, telephone Back Bay 5277; or Harold D. Bornstein, No. 664 Commonwealth avenue, telephone Back Bay 4700, who have been appointed as a sub-committee of Governor Coolidge's committee to see that this necessary transportation is provided.

wells or buried alive in ditches will never come back to claim what was theirs. Their eggs are scrambled.

If you like the government that guarantees you safety, property and opportunity, prove it. Buy Victory Bonds, and don't wait until weeks after next.

Henry Ford ought not to be the only man in the United States to buy ten millions dollars' worth of bonds. There are men that could buy Ford, and they would show wisdom if they said something.

Contrast sirens, ancient and modern, and you will say, "Turn backward, time, and give me the ancient." The old sirens had beautiful faces, soft voices and hideous feet of vultures. They lived on a rock in the western sea, and sang the sailors to their doom.

Circe turned her gentlemen admirers into pigs and laughed at them (it is still done). Odysseus put wax in the ears of his crew, tied himself to the mast, so that he had to stay put, until he got by the siren ladies. They missed that adventure.

Less wise were the young travellers of North and San Francisco avenues, early in this fog of Chicago yesterday morning. Wibert and Unhart were their names. Silvery siren laughter, pleasant voices, came from a limousine standing at the curb. They drew nigh.

Silvery laughter stopped, two men got up from the bottom of the car, with levelled revolvers, and relieved the Chicago Croesuses of their valuables. And as they stood with their hands in the air, a siren voice, no longer silvery, said:

"Get out and get that wrist watch from him."

The world is less romantic than it was.

A Soviet government in Turkey? That is the latest of that kind of news. First the war, then the influenza, then the Soviet. Next, an earthquake, not measured. How long will the Soviet last? Are we facing something new in government, a real movement, to result as other movements have done in better conditions, after intelligence got control? Or is it only an adjustment, an indication on the seismograph of history, an earthquake to shake something down and be followed by long quiet?

An interesting successor to Mohammed is the Bolshevik. They are alike in their motto, "Believe as I do or die." One thing is certain—universal peace that was to follow the war can be only a combination for peace among certain nations. Failure to recognize the claims of Italy menaces even that partial peace, which would be a peace of France, England, Italy and the United States by agreement and of Germany by compulsion.

It isn't necessary to say that there will be other wars. There is war. The regular cablegram tells you of the peace difficulties in Paris. The latest news bulletin says: "Allies have advanced twenty miles at Archangel. Lithuanians have captured Vilna."

Outbreaks of Bolshevism in Turkey should be a sufficient answer to the kind French, English and Italian suggestion that the United States become "mandatory" for Turkey, Armenia, Bessarabia and other regions.

To be "mandatory" means to make yourself responsible for peace and happiness in those regions. The President of the United States would not accept a job as principal keeper in the violent ward of a lunatic asylum. He surely won't accept a similar job for Uncle Sam in Eastern Europe or anywhere else.

184 OFFICERS ON HARVARD'S HONOR ROLL

Casualties in All Branches Revealed by the Latest Statistics

Commissioned officers comprise 184, or nearly two-thirds, of the total number of names on the Harvard roll of honor, according to the latest statistics of that university's war records office. The list now includes 300 men who died in the armed service of the United States and her allies, and twenty-four others who served in auxiliary branches.

Foreign armies are well represented, the English coming first with a total of twenty-two, the French second, with fifteen, and the Canadian last, with six.

It is a scarcely known fact that three university men served in the German armies. They were, however, German citizens and had only taken graduate work at the university.

The list commences with the name of George Williamson '05, of Montreal, Canada, who as a lieutenant in the second battalion of the Duke of Wellington's Riding Regiment, was subadly wounded during the opening engagements of the war that he died of his injuries in a hospital on November 4, 1914. He is believed to have been the first graduate of any American college to have been killed during the world war.

All branches of the American service are represented. Infantry has the highest number, 81, followed by Air Service with 41. The otherse are: Field Artillery 17, Medical Corps 12, Machine Gun Corps 8, Engineers 8, Coast Artillery Corps 5, Cavalry 4, Quartermaster Corps 4, Intelligence Service 2, S. A. T. C. 2, Ordnance Corps 2, Signal Corps 1, and Inspector-General's Department 1.

The navy is given the names of twelve in the line service and seven in the aviation. The Marine Corps has six men on the roll, one being an aviator. Among the auxiliary branches the various Ambulances stand highest with a total of twelve deaths, the Red Cross has three, the Y. M. C. A. two, and one is noted in the Belgian Relief Commission.

As far as the commissioned men in the army are concerned, the lieutenants have more than all the other ranks combined, in all 140. There are also thirty-one captains, ten majors, one colonel and one chaplain among the university's dead. In the list of naval officers who have been killed, nine are ensigns.

WHY RUN-DOWN, PALE EXHAUSTED WOMEN SHOULD TAKE IRON

"There can be no beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked, steady nerved women without iron. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks—their charm and attractiveness departs. I always insist that my patients take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—(not metallic iron which often corrodes the stomach and does more harm than good). Nuxated Iron is easily assimilated, does not blacken nor injure the teeth nor upset the stomach. It will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, irritable, careworn, haggard women in two weeks' time in many cases. I have used it in my own practice with most surprising results,"—Ferdinand King, M.D., well known New York Physician and medical author. (Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded—On sale at all good druggists.)

NUXATED IRON

Why do Preston Aspirin Tablets give sure and quick relief?

Because they are pure and contain no free salicylic acid or other harmful ingredients. Because thousands of people have found them extremely efficacious in the treatment of colds, headaches, grippe, neuralgia, rheumatism and other disorders where there are pains, aches, inflammation and fever. Preston's—The Aspirin Of Proven Purity—is prescribed by physicians and recommended by druggists everywhere. Three sizes, at all druggists—boxes of 12 tablets; flasks of 24 tablets; bottles of 100 tablets. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Preston Chemical Co., Brooklyn, N.Y.

HISTORY of the YANKEE DIVISION

HARRY A. BENWELL

HEROIC DEEDS OF YANKEE SOLDIERS AT VERDUN

This is the twenty-fourth instalment of the "History of the Yankee Division," which began in the Sunday Advertiser-American on March 30.

Copyright, 1919, by New England Publishing Company.

CHAPTER XXIV.
Transferred to Verdun.

Following the successful diversion in the Woevre, the Yankees were pulled out and transported up to the famous citadel at Verdun, where they became the army reserve. On October 16 three companies of the 104th Infantry went into line. They marched twenty-four kilometers with nothing to eat, and then, assisted by fifteen French tanks, fought until morning. Fourteen tanks were lost in this engagement, and the New Englanders had about 250 casualties. That afternoon they again attacked and gained all their objectives.

As a result of this action, General Andlauer, the French commander, sent the following commendation:

"Third Bureau.
"October 17, 1918.
"From General Andlauer, commanding the 18th Division of Infantry.
"To the commanding General, 26th Division.

"General—At the moment that the 18th Division of Infantry is relieved in its sector by the 26th Division of Infantry, United States, I wish to send you my heartiest thanks for the support given to its comrades of the 77th Regiment by the 104th Infantry, which, since its arrival in the sector, attacked with élan and succeeded, thanks to a stubborn infantry battle, in forcing the evacuation of half of the edge of the Bois d'Haumont by the enemy.

"Andlauer."

The attack in question was of comparatively small moment in the general scheme of things, but for those who participated it was one of the hottest engagements they had seen. The troops gained their objective, but were unable to hold it, owing to the intensity of the fire from the enemy. The ground was extremely muddy, and the tanks went out of action either by sliding into shell holes or capsizing.

There were numerous instances of personal bravery. Lieutenant W. M. Leonard with his men held their place for an hour and a half. Lieutenant Walter A. Tisdell, who was alongside, joined Lieutenant Leonard, and with two squads of men the young officers traveled through the devastated area that had once been a wood to find and rescue wounded. Lieutenant Dwight T. Pelton gained his objective, but when the tanks gave out, and he also returned with his wounded at the close of the day. Corporal John LaFleau was in a platoon which was surrounded by the enemy and which shot its way out; the corporal, however, was captured. Sergeant Benjamin Shapiro captured a machine gun single-handed. Only one of the crew of seven.

RELIEVES FRENCH DIVISION.

Charles H. Reville, a stretcher-bearer, carrying in a wounded man with a companion, felt the other end of the stretcher sag. He looked around and found that his comrade had been hit. Reville managed to drag the man on the stretcher into a dressing station, and then went back five times, bringing in a wounded soldier each time.

Another typical incident illustrating the spirit of the division occurred during this tank attack. A company of the 104th Infantry was relieving in reserve near a dressing station. The wounded were coming in faster than the stretcher-bearers could transport them to the ambulance posts, two kilometers below. The "doughboys" were asked for volunteer stretcher-bearers, and the whole company responded. They were immediately accepted, and for the rest of the day passed back and forth over a shell-swept road, carrying wounded, although they knew that it would be necessary for them to go back this line shortly.

The next day the division came up and relieved the 18th French Division. The 101st Infantry was given the left end of the line, on the crest of a hill. Next to the right was the 102d, with the 103d on another hill, and the 104th in reserve. This sector was under severe and constant shelling, which made it extremely difficult to get up supplies and ammunition. Even the back areas were sprayed by shells each day, and the German guns were registered on crossroads and traffic thoroughfares.

However, the 51st Artillery Brigade was heavily reinforced, even naval 14-inch railway guns coming up on the far side of the Meuse. These guns constantly replied to the German bombardment, and the resultant din was terrific.

It was at this time that the division received its greatest blow, one from which it never fully recovered. On October 12, while General Edwards was organizing an attack to start the next morning, he received orders relieving him from his beloved command. The men of the division were stunned. General Edwards had just taken over a sector on the worst front of the whole line; for three days he had suffered the most intense grief over the death of his only daughter Bessie, who fell a victim to pneumonia, while working in a cantonment hospital in the United States, and his personal aide, Captain "Nat" Simpkins, was also at death's door from the same disease.

The order relieving the general stated that he was to be detached from the division and the American Expeditionary Forces, and return home to train a new division.

MADE A MAJOR.

For days he had been laboring under a tremendous responsibility, submerging his own troubles under a mass of details which customarily were handled by his aides. Captain Hyatt had been promoted to major and sent to the Staff College. Then Captain Simpkins was taken sick, and on October 13 was evacuated to the field hospital. At the same time Brigadier-General Shelton was also evacuated, suffering from Spanish influenza, and Colonel Bearss replaced him. Lieutenant-Colonel E. E. Lewis, who had just been promoted, succeeded Colonel Bearss in the command of the Connecticut regiment.

The story of how he received the news of the death of his only child at Camp Meade was told by General Edwards in the following words:

I was up in the trenches when some one approached me. "What is the worst news you could receive?" he asked. "Madame?" I asked, in return (that being the manner in which the General refers to his wife). He shook his head and said that wasn't it. Then I knew it must be Bessie. He gave me a clipping. I was worrying about Captain Simpkins at the time.

The night was a terrible one. The roads were almost impassable and were raked by shell fire. The nearest cable office was about four-teen kilometers away. I took some of the motorcycle despatch riders. I told them I must send a cable. Every man volunteered. One of them then rode through with the message, I remember.

The gloom caused by this latest bereavement in had affected a letter which the Rev. M. J. O'Connor of Roxbury, senior chaplain of the division and formerly chaplain of the 101st Infantry, sent to General Edwards:

"Headquarters 26th Division, American Expeditionary Forces,
"October 17, 1918.

"My Dear General Edwards:

"I know words are words to assuage the grief that has come to you in the loss of your only daughter. I know that she was to you, and her loss by death at a time when you are far from home and so deeply interested in the destinies of the men under your command will draw from you all the virility of your manhood to sustain the blow.

"I realize that a heart like yours which has caused you to show so much sympathy for afflicted parents and wounded soldiers must feel deeply the grief that has come to you. Were it possible for the officers and men under your command to lighten this burden, every man of them would feel it an honor if his life could restore hers to you.

"But we are powerless; yet if there be consolation in knowing that there are thirty thousand hearts which desire to lessen your sorrow, the 26th Division grieves with you.

"May God, who has placed this burden on you and your good wife, give both of you the strength to accept it with Christian fortitude.

"Sincerely yours,
M. J. O'CONNOR,
"Chaplain."

EXPRESSES MEN'S VIEWS.

In that letter Chaplain O'Connor expressed the sentiments of every man in the division. General Edwards replied thus:

"Headquarters Twenty-Sixth Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
October 25, 1918.

"My Dear Chaplain O'Connor:—Your note will be treasured by my poor wife. It is beautifully like you, and I appreciate it very much.

"I got an official cablegram from the War Department about Army Nurse Bessie Edwards, quoting a message from Mrs. Edwards, the first I had received, that she had cabled me three times, that she was with our daughter to the last, that she died happy, and that Bessie had sworn in as a nurse with a chance to come to France.

"I did not believe that God's inscrutable ways would demand a daughter for the cause, and a second but more successful sacrifice than the other member of the family. However, it has come, and it must be borne, together with this last separation.

"Just say to the individuals of this Yankee Division as you see them that my one wish is that they should carry on under the new commander and continue in their glorious record. That is the thing that is on our consciences that nobody can deprive us of, and their loyal devotion and success are a great compensation and a great comfort to me.

"I will see you before I go.
Faithfully yours,
C. R. EDWARDS.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

Colonel Holten B. Perkins is forty-eight years of age and was born in Salem. He is a member of the insurance firm of Cyrus Brewer & Company, No. 44 Kilby street, Boston. He is unmarried. His military career dates from February 19, 1894, when he enlisted in the First Corps Cadets of Boston. He became second lieutenant in the same organization in February, 1902, and was commissioned first lieutenant-captain and major at subsequent dates.

When the First Corps Cadets changed to the engineers in 1917 he was elected lieutenant-colonel. Later he became colonel of the 4th Pioneer Infantry, U. S. A. He went overseas with the 4th, remaining in command of it for seven months, until October 28, 1918, when the regiment was broken up and used as replacements. He returned to this country February 11 last and was discharged at Camp Lee, two days later. He had been in military service twenty-five years.

Bar Jazz Music by Stationary Bands in Y. D. Parade

Ragtime and jazz music are to be barred from the programs of the stationary bands on the day of the parade by order of the State Music Committee, of which Senator George W. Curran is chairman. Most of the marches designated are already on the 26th Division list, picked out by Mr. Wallace Goodrich for General Edwards when he took the division overseas in 1917.

While at least 16 civilian bands will be stationed along the parade route, the only bands in the parade itself will be the regular regimental bands of the 26th Division. There will be no singing during the marching—only before the parade starts and during the three and five-minute pauses.

Bert Ford's Tales of the Y D

In Chapter XV. of his "Tales of the Y-D" today, Mr. Ford quotes a citation which General Edwards sent to the 101st Engineers and also citations to the 102d Machine Gun Battalion and the ambulance section of the Sanitary Train.

General Edwards said of the ambulance section of the Yankee Division:

"From previous experience I knew that the wounded of my division would be well cared for under all conditions . . . I learned that you had established your dressing station in a daringly-advanced position and that your officers and men continued their operations until the station caved in after many direct hits."

Mr. Ford today also praises the work of Colonel Warren E. Sweetser and his officers and men in the organization and conduct of the trains and military police.

By BERT FORD.
CHAPTER XV.

Copyright, 1919, by the Boston American.

The work of the 101st Engineers was so brilliant in the St. Mihiel drive when the American forces, in less than two days of fighting, wiped out an enemy salient that had been a thorn in the side of the Allies for nearly four years, that General Edwards sent the following commendation to Colonel Bunnell:

Headquarters 26th Division,
American Expeditionary Force,
France, September 20, 1919.

From: Commanding General.
To: Commanding Officer, 101st Engineers.

Subject: Commendation of your command.

1. From the 12th to the 14th of September this division played an important part in the cutting off of the St. Mihiel salient, pushing through critically unknown enemy country from Les Eparges to Vigneulles, to a distance of approximately fourteen kilometers.

2. In a brilliant dash of this sort, the advancing troops are always halted with the acclaim which they well deserve. The infantry applauds them. But to those of us who know the inside points of the game, there comes the thought of those others without whom the success could not have been accomplished.

The duties of engineer troops seldom lead to the path of glory. Their labors and the fruits of them are seldom recognized by the layman. But there are some of us who know of the work that your regiment has done. In this last advance I cannot compliment you too highly on it. The 101st Engineers not only did the pioneer work at the front which was their specific duty, but also repaired the roads in the rear which should perhaps, more properly be done by Corps Engineers.

3. Your officers and men repaired roads that were filled with shell holes, wire and other obstacles, roads which in some cases were entirely obliterated. They accomplished their mission in a minimum of time under difficulties which were insurmountable. They continued their work day and night, laboring unceasingly under fire, making it possible to carry ammunition and supplies to the troops, that they might hold the ground which they had taken. Without the supreme effort of your command our victory would have gone for naught.

4. I congratulate you on your masterly handling of a difficult piece of work, and through you I congratulate your regiment, which has continued to uphold the best traditions of New England and of the Yankee Division.

C. R. EDWARDS,
Major-General, Commanding.

PROUD OF ACHIEVEMENTS.

On the same day General Edwards paid this tribute to the 102d Machine Gun Battalion:

Headquarters 26th Division,
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, Sept. 30, 1918.

From: Division Commander.
To: Commanding Officer, 102d Machine Gun Battalion (Through Commanding General, 51st Infantry Brigade).
Subject: Commendation of your command.

1. On Sept. 12, 13 and 14, this division played an important part in the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient and the return of fifty square miles of territory to its own people.

2. Your march from Les Eparges to Vigneulles was a remarkable achievement. Supporting an infantry regiment, you advanced with a part of your battalion fourteen or more kilometers in the darkness of the night, through an unknown territory infested by the enemy, ever pushing on through obstacles and under shell fire, until your ultimate goal was reached. The part that you played with the officers and men of your command will not be forgotten.

3.—I congratulate you and thru you your subordinate officers and enlisted men, for your unfaltering perseverance and your gallantry and courage. The people of New England have every right to be proud of you as I am proud of you for proving your worthiness as soldiers of the Yankee Division.

C. R. EDWARDS,
Major-General, Commanding.

MEDICAL UNITS BRAVE.

And this brings us to the sanitary train, which kept pace with all other branches of the Yankee Division. The ambulance section and the work of the litter-bearers equalled those of any American combat division. There were no more willing or braver medical units in the army than were those from New England. They rescued and treated the wounded under the most perilous conditions. Many litter-bearers were wounded and killed. Their performances were spectacular and gallant.

Captain Herbert W. Taylor, M. C., commanded the Ambulance Section, and his assistant, who deserves equal praise, was Captain Joseph R. Reif, M. C., of Keene, N. H. I don't think there were two more conscientious soldiers in the A. E. F.

The Ambulance Section received warm praise from General Edwards in the following citation:

WORKED UNDER TERRIBLE FIRE.

Headquarters 26th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
France, Sept. 30, 1918.

From: Division Commander.
To: Captain Herbert W. Taylor, M. C., Commanding Ambulance Section, 101st Sanitary Train.
Subject: Commendation of 101st and 102nd Ambulance Companies.

1. I have been informed by the Division Surgeon of the exceptionally meritorious service rendered by the Dressing Station and Litter-Bearer Detachments of the 101st Ambulance Company and the Ambulance and Litter Bearer Detachments of the 102nd Ambulance Company on September 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th, during the attack on the towns of Marcheville and Riaville.

2. From an observation post I had personally observed the gallant work of the ambulance drivers and litter bearers under terrific enemy shell-fire, machine gun fire and rifle fire. From previous experience I knew that the wounded of my division would be well cared for under all conditions. My confidence in my sanitary personnel during all our engagements has left my mind free for other matters.

3. But from my point of vantage my view was not superficial. It was not until later that I learned that you had established your dressing station in a daringly advanced position under direct shell-fire and that your officers and men continued their operations until the station caved in after many direct hits. Your ambulances and litter bearers worked unceasingly under this terrible fire for over twenty-four hours, continuously searching for and carrying the wounded. Colonel Porter states that your work was the most remarkable that he has ever known in the United States Army.

4. I congratulate you personally on your splendid management of the situation and through you I congratulate your officers and men on their intrepid and gallant conduct. You have the right to be further the glorious record of the Yankee Division of which we are so proud.

C. R. EDWARDS.
Major-General, Commanding.

LIEUT.-COL. JONES NERVY.

Lieutenant-Colonel Fred E. Jones commanded the 101st Sanitary Train. He was always on the job at the front and had enough nerve for a half dozen men. The other Sanitary Train officers are Major Frederick L. Dugan, director of the Division Field Hospital; Major Herbert W. Taylor, commanding the Ambulance Section; Major Frederick L. Blair, Major Maurice F. Jones and Major Joseph P. Esmon, all of Field Hospital 101; Major Samuel Hoyt, commanding Field Hospital 103; Majors Frank W. Stevens and Benjamin F. Hawk of Field Hospital 104; Major Charles S. Walker, Medical Supply Unit; Captain Bernard H. Lovely, personnel adjutant; Captains Joseph H. Dunn, Joseph B. Edwards, John P. Bethel, Grigs Wiseman, Clyde C. Johnston, Robert B. Durham, Joseph H. Cutchin, Charles H. Sprague, Marshall A. Wellbourn, Forrest J. Irury, Joseph K. Suris, Thomas D. MacKenzie, Frederick L. Gregory, Robert H. Dreslin and Thomas V. Daley of the ambulance sections; Captains James H. Malonson, Howard L. Cecil, Arthur A. Weed, Harold F. Parker, Roy R. Fallas, Chester F. Brown, John S. Buchanan and Thomas L. A. Shaffer of the Field Hospitals; Captain Walter D. Reilly, dental laboratory; Captain Frank Willis, medical supply unit; Captain Gustave P. Grasfield, sanitary officer; Captain James F. Cobey, and First Lieutenants Harry L. Upshaw, Henry L. Christiansen, Hunter S. Woodberry, Paul B. Roen, Swinton L. Lane, John E. Harris and John C. PINERO DRAMA AT COPLEY A SUCCESS

"The Thunderbolt" Arouses Audience to High Pitch of Enthusiasm

Nine curtain calls after a third act is a proceeding Boston does not often see in these sophisticated days, but "The Thunderbolt," by Sir Arthur Pinero, at the Copley Theatre last night, accomplished the unusual with a select and reserved audience of college professors, Drama League critics and theatregoers, who have seen and known the best productions brought to this city in a decade.

The thunderbolt struck with full dramatic force when a family of middle class, selfish, narrow aristocrats were told that a fortune they thought left to them was not theirs after all.

WILL SPIRITED AWAY.

The will of a dead brother, brewer, has been spirited away or never made, and in the absence of any such document the million dollars go to nearest of kin. These "dear" relatives are shown in all their grasping sordidness and unprincipled degeneracy. Their undoing, after they had partially spent a large part of the money they expected, makes a remarkably effective scene that, in spite of rough shod handling, aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

The act ends with a real hub-bub which is so noisy and excited that many good lines are entirely missed. This climax should be worked over until all the lines vital to the play are made distinct and harmonious.

"The Thunderbolt" is given its first performance in Boston, and should run several weeks or months.

As an example of fine, expressive acting, E. E. Clive won enthusiastic recognition. It was his sincere and convincing acting near the end of the third act which accounted for the numerous curtain calls.

HAS DIFFICULT ROLE.

Jessamine Newcombe, who played opposite to Mr. Clive, was given an unusually difficult role and won recognition that should prove most gratifying.

The parts last night were taken with such skill and conviction that all or none of the cast should be mentioned.

While "The Thunderbolt" will undoubtedly make a hit at the Copley this week, much pains should be taken to tone down and harmonize scenes in a few cases, where confusion seemed to take the place of art.

New York, April 22.—Postmaster-General Burleson has ordered the distribution of "Postal Telegraph," the house organ of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, to employes of the company, through "regular channels," suspended, according to William J. Deegan, secretary of the Mackay Companies.

Mr. Deegan added that distribution to the public of literature "which in any way reflects on Burleson's control" also had been ordered suspended and that an employe who expressed any opinion against the present control "must give a promise to keep his mouth shut or face instant dismissal."

Spurns Attractive Western Offer to Keep Providence Engagement

It has just leaked out that Providence almost lost its opportunity of hearing John O'Sullivan, the Irish tenor of the Chicago Opera Company, next Sunday afternoon at the Shubert-Majestic Theatre there, under the management of Albert Steinert.

Shortly after the Providence concert was booked, an offer of three concerts in the Middle West at about the same date, April 27, was made to Mr. O'Sullivan. He asked if Providence could release him but Manager Steinert had already announced the concert.

Postponement was impossible because O'Sullivan sails for France to fill an engagement at the Paris Opera immediately after his Boston concert, May 4.

The Western people were insistent, but O'Sullivan declared that he would stick by his agreement, no matter if he did lose a triple fee by so doing.

DEMPSEY'S EARLY LIFE SPENT ON FARM IN COLORADO

By Damon Runyon.

(Copyright, 1919, by Damon Runyon.)

Now for a little of the early history of Jack Dempsey, the pugilistic phenomenon who has made such a startling record in the ring in the last few years, and who would, if ever he met the Mighty Atom of Athol, Mass., be a favorite to win.

Jack Dempsey was born in Manassa, June 24, 1895. I am told there is a record somewhere which says that he is 23 years of age, but on the night of my visit to the Dempsey home I was informed by Jack himself that he was only 22.

Jack is a tall, slim, sandy-haired young man, who looks as though he might have been a pretty good lightweight fighter if he had a mind to be one. However, I have it on Dempsey family Bible that Jack is a heavyweight, and that settles it. Dempsey is as tall as he looks.

Jack's parents were [illegible] when they left Manassa, Jack was a little boy. They went to Colorado, where Jack's father, William Harrison Dempsey, took up a homestead claim.

FAMILY OF ELEVEN.

There were eleven children in the family, and Jack was the seventh child. Jack's father was a hard-working man, and he had to be to support his family of eleven children on a homestead claim in Colorado. Jack's father was a man of powerful physique, and he was a good fighter in his day. He was a miner, and he was a good miner. He was a good husband and father, and he was a good citizen. He was a good man in every way.

LITTLE BIT OF JACK MCKENNA.

Jack's father was a man of powerful physique, and he was a good fighter in his day. He was a miner, and he was a good miner. He was a good husband and father, and he was a good citizen. He was a good man in every way.

BUILT WITH BIG STICK

Jack's father was a man of powerful physique, and he was a good fighter in his day. He was a miner, and he was a good miner. He was a good husband and father, and he was a good citizen. He was a good man in every way.

DEMPSEY'S BROTHER FIGHTER.

Jack's father was a man of powerful physique, and he was a good fighter in his day. He was a miner, and he was a good miner. He was a good husband and father, and he was a good citizen. He was a good man in every way.

FIRST NAME IS BERNARD.

The Jack in William Harrison Dempsey is not the first name of the great pugilist. It is only a nickname. It traces back, however, not by way of William Harrison Dempsey, but through his brother, Bernard.

Bernard Dempsey became a fighter

THIS is the anniversary of the birth in 1564 of William Shakespeare, the world's greatest poet and dramatist. His profound tragedies and delightful comedies are more quoted than those of any other author. Strange to say, Shakespeare died on April 23, at the age of fifty-two.

CHAPTER XV.
The Locked House.

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers

FROM the road one could see lights in the windows of the farmhouse. Because of the position of the road, one could see only a few panes of light, but it did not require much effort to imagine that there was something strange about seeing a light in every window of the farmhouse. Strange, because the house was locked and bolted for the night, and no one expected to see a light in it to be burning but at the lowered shades of a house which was supposed to be empty and closed.

His instant impulse was to put on the brake and stop. Note but the next moment he reasoned that he car must have been heard and seen by whoever had lighted that shaded lamp. The car was already on the old stone bridge, the tarred house stood directly behind the crossroads ahead, and he swung to the right into the creek road and sped along it for a few moments, and then he shut off the engine and coasted silently and softly through the village.

Then he ran under the tall weeds close to the row of willows edging the creek, extinguished his lights, stopping the tail lamp, left his motor running, stood listening for a moment to the whispering whirr of his motor, then, taking the flash light from his pocket he climbed over the roadside wall and ran back across the pasture toward the house.

As he approached the old house from the rear, no trace of light was visible and he began to think he might have been mistaken—that perhaps the dancing stars or fireflies or own acetylenes on the window had made it seem as though they were illuminated from within.

Cautiously he prowled along the rear under the kitchen windows turned the corner, and went to the front porch.

He had made no mistake. A glimmer was visible between the edges of the covered shade and the window casing.

Was it some impudent tramp who had pre-empted the house for the night, during use? Most probably the stranger who had expected to return for a garden to cultivate and a place to sleep in? Yet how could he be the latter when he himself had the keys to the house? Moreover such an arrangement could scarcely have been made by Miss Carew without his being told of it.

Then he remembered what the Princess Matchenka had said—that she had a message that somebody might break into the house and get the silver—and how, when he had returned to Brookhollow and secured him mediately.

Was it a trap that was being done now? Had somebody broken in for that purpose? And who might that

Stocks Stay Strong in New York in Afternoon

STEEL COMMON SELLS AS HIGH AS 103

Trading in This Issue the Feature of Another Million-Share Market

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

There was a further advance in New York at midday, when copper came to the front. By afternoon they were one of the most active groups, with Utah Copper showing the largest gain. At that time the market was still strong and, in fact, prices averaged at their best for the session up to that time. U. S. Steel had been the feature, opening at par and later showing a point loss. In the second hour a buying movement began which took it to the highest for the year to date. By afternoon it was selling at 103.

It was bought in thousand or more share lots and by the most important brokerage houses in the financial district. Prices ruled higher at the opening of the market, but there was a quick reaction. The rally which came toward the end of the first hour held throughout the morning, although profit taking was general and at times hampered the upward movement. Trading was of about the same magnitude as previously this week, morning transactions totaling between 400,000 shares. But million-share days have become so frequent that traders did not even comment upon the fact that this was to be another. The one rail rate was 5 per cent.

LARGEST AFTERNOON GAINS.

Largest afternoon gains included U. S. Steel at 2¾, at 103; Car & Foundry, 2¾ at 84¾; American Smelting, 1¾ at 73¾; Anaconda, 1¼ at 63; Utah Copper, 2¾ at 77¾; Continental Can, 2¾ at 81½; Goodrich, 2¾ at 78¾. Railway Steel Spring, 2¼ at 88½; Republic Steel, 2 at 97½, and Industrial Alcohol, 4 at 153½.

ISSUES AT RECORD HIGH.

A number of issues sold at record high prices during the morning, including Texas and Pacific, Railway Steel Spring, American Steel Foundries and American Agricultural Chemical. Others besides U. S. Steel to sell at their highest this year were Central Leather and International Locomotive.

After Rubber was an especially strong issue, advancing seven points before noon. While most railways were weak, those which did show interests were conspicuous for strength and activity. These included Missouri and Pacific, Texas and Pacific, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, and Union Pacific preferred. Shipping shares were a weak spot on the list, particularly Marine common.

U. S. STEEL REVENGED AT PAR.

Strength extended throughout the list at the opening. United States Steel selling at par sold up to 104¾ on first transactions. Issues in line with a point or more gains included Studebaker, the close on Tuesday's Pacific and Hide and Leather. Stocks were scarce, and, after the upturn at the close on Tuesday, there was a general tendency to cover. Buying by the public was the principal influence, many orders coming from New England, while there was extensive demand in the early part of the advance added to the clangrin of bears after the failure of yesterday's attempt to break the market. News from Paris in morning newspapers was no more reassuring, and the best that was heard in regard to the steel products price dispute is that the conference between differing departments of the government will be resumed.

PUBLIC VIEW IS OPTIMISTIC.

But underlying the whole situation is the optimism of the American people. It extends from farms through industrial plants to banking circles. There is unrest in many localities, curtailment of production and almost universal understanding that readjustment of the readjustment problems are exasperating and difficult. But a vast majority of people think everything is coming out all right in the end, there will be plenty of work, and there is no question about the country having plenty of money. With ample resources, unbounded resources, the least of manufacturing facilities, all the workers needed, record-breaking crops in sight and the whole world for a market, there is reason for the United States to look ahead with confidence. In regard to stocks it may be added that in this era of high valuation they are about the safest things on the list.

UPTON MARKET BEGAN FIRM.

At the start of trading on the Boston exchange the price range was narrow and a number of usually active stocks were unchanged. The market had a firm undertone during the morning although reports from Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Maryland and Ohio said that already contracted for long stretches of corn acreage.

CONCRETE ROADS HAVE PROVED BIG SUCCESS

The concrete road, trial stretches of which have been built in different parts of New England, and more generally in the Middle West, are found to be a success, and already several States have made large appropriations for the permanent roads of construction.

Road experts predict that this type of pavement construction is the final answer to the road question. Highlights: Pennsylvania, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Maryland and Ohio have already contracted for long stretches of concrete road.

APRIL COPPER TRADE VERY SMALL

Total Sales Show Big Shrinkage Compared With Dull March

The copper market is now as sluggish as it has been at any time during April and sales for the first three weeks of this month are said to total less than 20,000,000 pounds, whereas about 75,000,000 pounds were marketed in the whole of March. The reduction of the asking price by leading selling agencies to 18 3-8 cents a pound delivered has brought very little business. Inquiries from consumers this week have in some instances shown there was no intention of paying more than 15¾ cents a pound for even comparatively small tonnages. Total can be bought in small sellers as low as 15⅝ cents a pound, and it is evident that they are not attracting users with the bulk of the copper needed. Jobbers are selling ingot and bar at 17 cents a pound, it is reported.

Naturally the domestic market is as quiet as it has been for years, foreign demand gives little hope of profitable export trade, and the closing of much of the copper now accumulating at ports in this country and Europe, the ocean freight rate is still very high, the tariff to be reduced 2 cents a pound and the excise cent, a pound. It was 3¾ cents during the war, but governments were the buyers and paid high for freighting, as for everything else.

Since the armistice Italy has been the second biggest foreign buyer in the American market, taking 13,092,557 pounds in January and 8,426,646 in February this year. There are no later figures obtainable. But after the eight months ended by February shipments to Italy totalled 106,852,-639 pounds, consigned among European countries only by England, with 17,753,754,621.

A local financial publication gives by the following tabulation the exports of American copper during the eight months ended February this year, 1919, 1917 and 1917-1918 periods, quantities being in pounds.

GASOLINE WAR AIDS AUTOISTS IN SOUTH

Motorists in the South now are getting the benefit of a gasoline war between the Gulf Refining Company and the Standard Oil which has resulted in the price of gasoline going down as low as thirteen cents a gallon in Memphis, Tenn., and eleven cents a gallon in Nashville, Tenn. The fight on the Gulf Company of one cent per gallon below the Standard oil price has been briskly fiddled and is still selling. Gasoline is now under cutting prices in Atlanta, Ga., and with cities quoting as follows: Chattanooga, 14; New Orleans, 19; Jacksonville and Tampa, 20; Miami, 21. It is expected that the rate war will affect New Orleans.

By FRED J McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor.

The thing which distinguishes "A Sleepless Night" at the Wilbur Theatre from the whole slew of farces which revolve around a bed the way the solar system circles around the sun, is the wicked intentions of the blonde heroine.

It has been a rule of American imitations of French farces that everybody must be perfectly respectable and of noble character, and they must be involved in situations which cause rough, but harmless, laughter by reason of no fault of their own.

Otherwise the puritanical American police would pinch all the actors and the author, the producer is usually a corporation.

FROYES RULES CAN BE BROKEN.

Rules can be broken. "A Sleepless Night" proves it. Regs. Froyes ingenue is responding to sex attraction as early as the first act. She reads naughty books. She claims to be a radical.

"What she needs is a cake of ice skilfully applied," says a cynical friend.

So when Rena slips into the chamber of the husband of her best friend, happens to be young and masculine, clad only in satin pajamas, her intentions are obviously anything but honorable.

For this "A Sleepless Night" deserves a diploma and the earnest attention of the W. C. T. U.

It happens that the young man in question is entertaining on the edge of the bed his wife, secretly married, of his best another lady, who happens How raw these things sound when set down in type. But they lose all offense in the telling. The complications, if more than obvious, end the editor wouldn't let it get by anyway.

Suffice it that our hero is found with one lady in his bed covered with a quilt and another under the bed, though not dead, in an exceedingly upright, not to say austere disposition. Naturally he is misunderstood.

SITUATION FUNNY.

"A Sleepless Night" contains lots of funny situations, though some of them are laboriously led up to. It is distinguished by an unusually fine crew of performers.

Ernest Glendenning, for example, comes from several seasons in that great religious drama "Experience," to play Froyes' hopeless, one - idea comedienne; Carlotta Monterey, admirable actress; William Morris; my favorite actor but the Shubert's gave me a headache when they look at that payroll every week.

The settings, as well as the story, were very rococo.

"PANTS AND PETTICOATS."

Edward H. Crosby, the veteran critic of the Boston Post, who takes a fall out of the drama every now and then to show that he can comprehend as well as criticise, is the author of a four-act play now running at the Somerville Theatre entitled "Pants and Petticoats."

It is being presented by the stock company of that theatre, and was given an unusually good production for a stock company. Kendall Weston, who staged and directed the piece, deserves credit for the likely nesslike manner in which the new piece went at the opening performance.

"Pants and Petticoats" was evidently written with a vengeful motive in the mind of Mr. Crosby, for the heroine makes her debut as a writer of the stage, and a baby is effectually boyish that her sex is not discovered until she is wounded at the end of an exciting scene.

During the first two acts the leading heroine is in pants. In the last two she is in petticoats.

Whether or not Mr. Crosby has the makings of a popular comedy in this piece, which suggests without copying Charlot's Revue in New York, is present shabe it is not a good play. Despite his knowledge of the theatre, Mr. Crosby develops his first act in Hotchkiss' apartments without letting the characters soliloquize. His successes are much too long and the preponderance of dialogue to action is out of all proportion.

His one big scene comes too early in the play, at the close of the second act, and his climax there falls flat at present, though a bit of stage management could easily remedy that fault. If it were the big scene, they could expand the second act, combine the last two, and do away with a scene in Santa Cario where a British lord proposes to the girl-boy of the piece, now a very successful author of young woman.

This much is certain, "Pants and Petticoats" is much better than Mr. Crosby's play, "The Mexicans," done in somerville two seasons ago, that it won't take much more improvement to put it on Broadway.

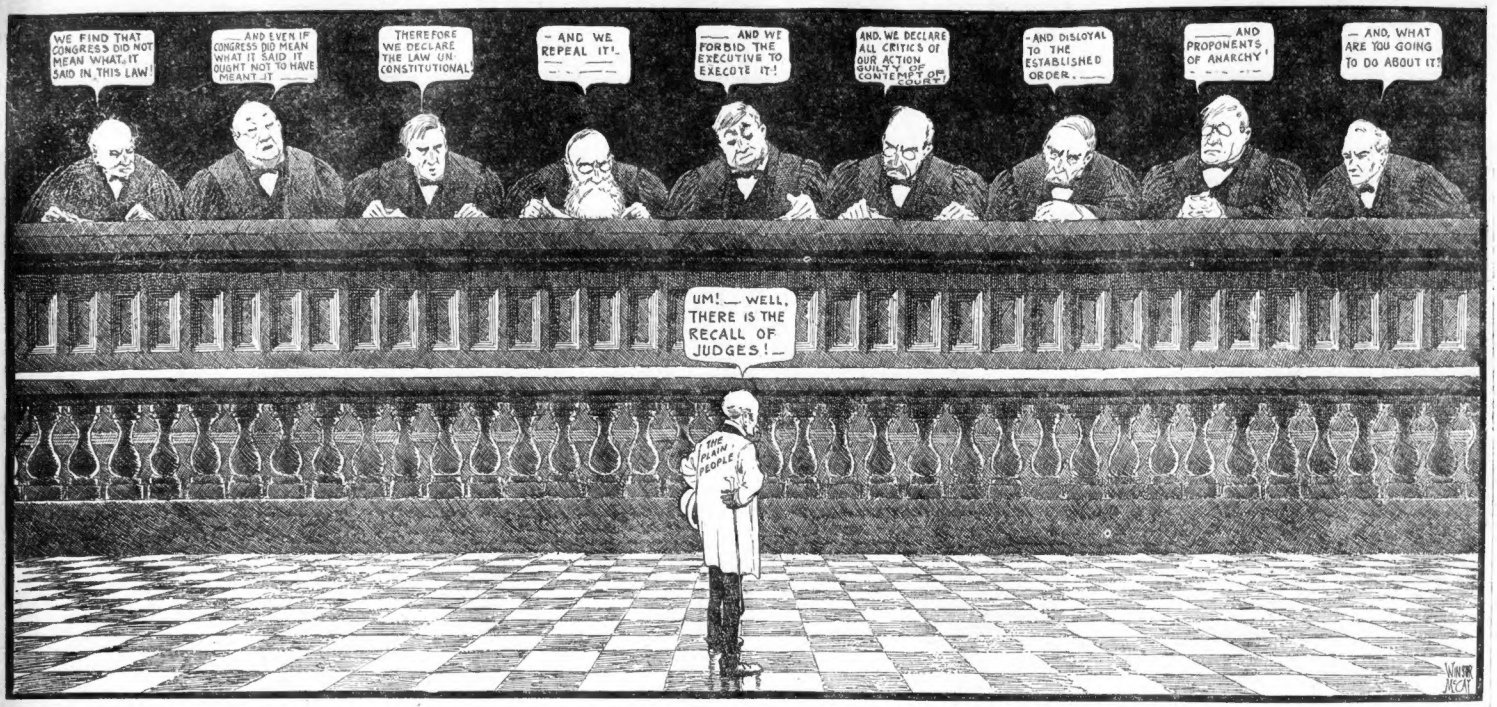
The Judicial, Legislative and Executive Branch of Our Government



WE FIND THAT CONGRESS DID NOT MEAN WHAT IT SAID IN THIS LAW!
—AND EVEN IF CONGRESS DID MEAN WHAT IT SAID IT OUGHT NOT TO HAVE MEANT IT — THEREFORE WE DECLARE THE LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL!
— AND WE REPEAL IT!
— AND WE FORBID THE EXECUTIVE TO EXECUTE IT!
AND WE DECLARE ALL CRITICS OF OUR ACTION GUILTY OF CONTEMPT OF COURT!
— AND DISLOYAL TO THE ESTABLISHED ORDER.
— AND PROPONENTS OF ANARCHY!
— AND, WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?
UM! — WELL, THERE IS THE RECALL OF JUDGES! —
THE PLAIN PEOPLE
WINSOR McCAY

WE condense the following wise, sane, farseeing and radical statements of great truths from the last immortal messages to Congress of Abraham Lincoln:

This country, with its institutions, belongs to the people who inhabit it. Whenever they shall grow weary of the existing government they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it. . . .

I hold that while man exists it is his duty to improve not only his condition, but to assist in ameliorating mankind. . . .

Labor is the superior of capital and deserves much the higher consideration. Capital has its rights, which are as worthy of protection as any other rights. Nor should this lead to a war upon property.

Property is the fruit of labor. Property is desirable, is a positive good in the world.

Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built.

The chief obstacle to this ideal of social justice is now a certain kind of JUDGE who halts progress.

We do not indict the judiciary as a whole for saying this, nor even the law. No profession is higher, none has nobler types of citizenship, none is freer from corruption than our judiciary.

But almost every great advance of humanity, every epoch-making improvement of conditions in this country, has been fought and often arrested and delayed for many years by the arbitrary action of some judge who vetoed a law simply because he did not approve of it.

The judge who thus usurps the legislative and executive authority and opposes the will of the people always claims that HE is upholding the Constitution, as though the Constitution were an instrument devised to prevent progress and improvement and to perpetuate injustice instead of being, as it is, the greatest human document ever written to promote justice, security and happiness.

We will give a few explicit instances:

Congress recently put an end to a very terrible kind of modern slavery. It forbade any one to compel children of fourteen, twelve and even ten years of age to labor in the fetid atmosphere of cotton mills ten and eleven hours daily.

Nine-tenths of the people have long demanded such a law. Seven-eighths of the Congress supported it.

The act was nullified by a single Federal judge in the interests of a few mill-owners who objected to any interference with their habit of making money by destroying the health and lives of children and of future generations.

Yet that judge cannot be removed or dismissed by the people.

In another case (Lochner vs. N. Y., 198 U. S. 45) a majority of the judges of the New York Court of Appeals declared unconstitutional a law limiting the hours of labor of bakers, many of whom (women) were forced to toil twelve hours daily in cellars to earn wages barely enough to keep soul and body together. The court held that this law was void because it interfered with "freedom of contract"—in other words, prevented the right of Strength or Wealth to take advantage of Weakness or Poverty.

In another case (Ives vs. South Buffalo Ry. Co., 94 N. E. R. 431) the New York Court of Appeals unanimously declared unconstitutional a law providing for workmen's compensation.

In this case a railroad employe was crippled for life while at work, without fault of his own or the railroad. His wife and children were left to struggle against bitter poverty. All compensation was denied. The judges admitted the injustice, but held the Constitution responsible for it. The people then amended the State Constitution, but this required three years' time and did Ives and his wife and children no good.

In another case (Ritchie vs. People, 40 N. E. R. 454) the Illinois Supreme Court held a law forbidding the employment of women in factories more than eight hours a day unconstitutional.

In another case, the famous Eighty-cent Gas case in New York, grave blunders were made by the circuit and district judges. The "atmosphere" of this case was extraordinary. One of the master minds in creating the gas-electric monopoly, which was resisting the law, had some years before shared a law office with two other rising men. The three men had little fortune, but great abilities. One became an organizer of trusts and monopolies and a successful manipulator of politicians; the second became an eminent Federal judge; the third, a great corporation lawyer.

When the monopoly created in part by the first of these men decided to fight the Legislature and the people it appealed to the judge, the second of these men, and to a master to take evidence, who was the third of these men. The master, being a corporation lawyer, found for the corporation. The Court, agreeing with the corporation lawyer, affirmed the decision. And the Eighty-cent Gas law was declared unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court of the United States righted that wrong.

In three other most notable cases the failure to achieve social or moral justice was due to the form of decrees drawn by corporation lawyers and approved by judges of the Federal Court. We refer to the Standard Oil, the Tobacco and the Coal Trust cases. These criminal and predatory trusts were shown to have defied both law and justice and to have operated with such moral turpitude that every court, finally the highest, found them guilty.

AND THE MASTERS OF THESE OUTLAWED TRUSTS WERE CONVICTED UNDER A CRIMINAL LAW!

Now, when an ordinary citizen violates a criminal law the court, upon conviction, fines or imprisons him, and sometimes takes even his life.

But from these immensely rich and powerful capitalists, when convicted criminally, the decree of the court did not take away either their property or their liberty. The eminent malefactors did not in the slightest degree suffer, unless mentally. They were compelled only to reorganize their companies in form. Their wealth was, indeed, by that operation vastly increased. The courts pronounced their acts to be crimes, but they were very rich scoundrels—growing richer every hour—and the sentence of the court did not injure their fortunes or social positions or reputations as leaders in churches and financial autocrats in the Street.

Neither Lenine nor Trotzky nor any anarchist orator raving against Capitalism could quote a clearer case of the triumph of plutocracy.

Circumstantial evidence is often sufficient to convict a person of murder, the highest of crimes. But circumstantial evidence is never strong enough to convict a trust magnate of robbery, though millions of people may have been robbed by his criminal cunning.

Lincoln said in his first inaugural:

If the policy of the Government upon vital questions affecting the whole people is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions of the Supreme Court the people will have ceased to be their own rulers.

In a famous old case, the Income Tax law, the judges of our highest court stood, in 1895, four in favor of the law, four against it. Upon reargument one judge, who had previously upheld the law, changed his vote to the negative and thus defeated the law.

Justice Shiras' single vote thus prevented for nearly twenty years the taxing of rich men's incomes. His integrity was never, of course, doubted. Is it not imaginable, however, that his point of view that an onerous income tax upon wealthy citizens was unjustifiable was unconsciously influenced by his long and close association with Pittsburgh millionaires?

Social influences often unconsciously affect the mind of a judge. We hear much of lobbies and legislative halls. In self-protection the Legislature of New York has decreed that every paid agent representing any private interest who comes to Albany to influence lawmakers must register in a book for that purpose, telling who pays him. This has helped to curb the power of lobbies.

But we hear nothing of the all-powerful social lobbies which surround some judges. These lobbies are not registered. They are found, however, in all the places frequented by judges, even private dinner tables and cosy corners of fashionable clubs. These lobbies and the enormous fees paid by rich corporations have done much to bring about that "waning respect for the law" which Justice Brandeis sorrowfully admitted in an address to the Chicago Bar Association.

Thus, when a great railway system gets into financial trouble there sometimes emerges from one of the cosy corners of a fashionable club a friendly applicant for a receiver, a friendly judge to appoint the receiver and a friendly lawyer to act as receiver—all from the same cosy corner of the same club. There is nothing overtly corrupt in this proceeding and it is quite regular.

In all these cases we see the exact negation of the principles Abraham Lincoln enunciated. What Lincoln said is nevertheless true. Most of the outrageous decisions by judges are, like the famous Dred Scott decision upholding slavery, revoked afterward either by the courts or by the people by constitutional amendment. But if our democracy is to be made safe its triumph over plutocracy must now be made swifter and surer.

It is just as necessary that judges should be representative of the people as it is that legislators or Governors or Presidents should be. All are alike, only servants of the people.

It is even more important that judges should be brought into closer sympathy with the people, because the failure of a judge to keep step with the procession of modern progress is much more dangerous to our democracy than the failure of a Legislature or of a Congress to enact wise laws; the evil in the case of the judge is much harder to reach, much slower to cure.

By falling out of step with the great procession of humanity, by standing aside from it, a solitary judge has a power not confided to a President or a Governor. He may hold up the whole procession.

We need the recall of judges, therefore, not to remove corrupt judges, for they are mighty few; not to intimidate judges, for few judges can be intimidated and none ought to be; but simply to put off the bench and to keep off the bench the judges who cannot move forward with the procession of humanity—who wilfully, often brazenly, set up their solitary will against the deliberate judgment of a majority of the people.

The mere existence of a law providing for the recall of judges would prevent the gross usurpation of power by any judge, or the easy compliance of other judges with the behests of corporation lawyers.

The exercise of this right by the people in one or two cases would impress the highest court with the fact that what the moral sentiment of the people demand must not be denied.

Experience has proved that Presidents should be elected by direct vote of the people instead of by indirect vote of an unpledged electoral college, the early method.

Experience has proved that Senators should be elected by direct vote of the people, instead of indirectly through the Legislatures, where the choice was often dictated by special interests.

The next step is to make ALL our judges faithful servants of the people. It is the reform most imperatively needed today. In the old days we as a nation were devoted to the ACCUMULATION of prosperity.

The greatest question in the world today, particularly in America, where there is more of it than anywhere else, is to devise new and safe laws for the DISTRIBUTION of prosperity. Judges have far less influence over the creation of prosperity than over the just distribution of prosperity.

And so we come back again to the words of Lincoln, uttered when the Supreme Court of the United States, immaculate in its honor but fettered in its humanity, sought to perpetuate slavery by its Dred Scott decision. Abraham Lincoln, admonishing a mob which sought to defeat the law by violence in Illinois, said:

It is the law and we must obey it. The Supreme Court of the United States has declared it to be the law and we cannot change it. BUT WE CAN CHANGE THE JUDGES.
